

Annalie Longo

2004-2009

Annalie Longo is a football star. She started her football journey when she was four. After watching her two older brothers kick a muddy football across the field, she realised that she loved the sport as well. Annalie liked to play in the boys leagues to challenge herself to get better when she was growing up.

Annalie encourages current EGGS girls to do the same by “setting smaller goals so you can slowly work towards the bigger goals.” This helped her get into the New Zealand U20 national team before going on to represent New Zealand at the Olympic Games in London 2012 and Rio 2016.

She says that her greatest success is every time she gets to represent New Zealand. She currently plays in the Women's Development division in Christchurch. Annalie is currently working as the Women's Development Officer at Mainland Football.

“Enjoy and love what you do and put yourself in the best environment for the best results.”
