

Gay Roberts (Baigent)

1952-1956

Gay Roberts was an incredibly busy young woman during her time at Epsom Girls Grammar School. She loved literature, language and science as well as dedicating much of her life to the sport of tennis. She gained a New Zealand junior doubles title as well as Auckland junior and EGGS titles.

After attaining a degree in Chemistry, Gay pursued her career in teaching through science and maths and later became Deputy Principal of EGGS. Gay believes having the attitude to always learn was key to her success. She was always striving to find new and more interesting ways to teach, saying she was “never content, always striving to learn.”

“Be flexible, form good friendships and remember - you are strong. It may be tough but you can do it. Believe it.”
