

Hayley Holt

1994-1998

It all started when Hayley was 7, taking up ballroom dancing not because she thought it would get her on Dancing With The Stars, but because she loved it. Upon leaving Epsom Girls Grammar School, where she made lifelong friends who she still thinks are her greatest success, she went on a student exchange to Colorado where she found her passion in Snowboarding.

Hayley has gone on to accomplish many things since leaving EGGS, including co-hosting national TV show 'The Crowd Goes Wild' and getting the honour of presenting the Halberg Awards in 2016 which she thought of as her proudest achievement.

Hayley is also running for parliament as a Green Party Aotearoa candidate in Helensville in 2017.

When asked how she achieved so much, she replied "I put 100% in everything I did, I worked hard and said yes to everything that came my way."

"Remember that life doesn't start when you leave school, everything you do now will set you up for life - so work hard but don't forget to enjoy it."
